HOW TO START FREELANCE WRITING WORK ONLINE AND BE SUCCESSFUL?

Freelance WRITING

I HAVE BEEN A FREELANCE BLOG WRITER FOR ABOUT 10 YEARS AND APART FROM THE EARLY STAGES WHEN I WAS STILL TRYING TO UNDERSTAND THE WHAT TO DO, I AM HAPPY TO SAY, I HAVE BEEN QUITE SUCCESSFUL

I originally started looking into blogging after starting to sell products online, however I was not very successful. I realized quite fast that I should write about topics that I knew something about instead of what I thought would sell. When I think back it seems obvious, blogging and creating an income from our actions online is a journey of discovery. When we are writing, we are also expanding our mind and reevaluating ideas and concepts which today I see as dynamic and empowering.

There is a few vital rules to making money online and that includes:

1. Having the passion for what you are writing about and doing
2. Have a good knowledge on what you are intending to write about and market
3. And finally, find a niche rather than a mass apply topic to write about

So, regardless if you are going to be a freelance blog writer, a direct sales marketer or building your own blog, be an authority in your niche. If your content is knowledge based and passionate, it will come through with your writing and it will be seen as authentic, and trusted.

So, remember, put your heart into your content.

The top 3 online content writing jobs from home

I wouldn't suggest that you try all three methods of working online. Most of us try them all and then find the one that fits us best. Some of the methods need better writing skills than others.

1. Freelance content writing needs a higher standard literacy, because often you will be writing for a client.
2. Direct sales needs far less, but still a high standard of creativity and knowledge of the product and industry.
3. Blogging comes somewhere in the middle. Blogging is a freer writing style. However, the visual and creative process should still be high if you want to be taken seriously.
