MLM ONLINE SUCCESS

Regardless if you are creating a mailing list in Gmail or using another mailing service for your MLM business your main goal after selling the products is building a prospect list

I have found when researching the top 10 direct selling company in world, that even in the 21st century many still like to commit to the old and frankly outdated MLM recruitment methods. The reason it is because asking a new team member to create a warm leads list of family and friends is simply and duplicatable, but unfortunately, most times it does not work.

Also, I believe that it takes a special type of person to be successful in network marketing and arguable traits many of us do not have. This leads to dissatisfaction and discontent from people joining the industry for the first time. It could be that the new distributor does not fully understand what they should be doing everyday to become successful, but most likely it is because they do not wish to speak to their social circle.

So, what the alternatives?
